SCHOOL SURROUNDINGS.

Large Yards and Playgrounds Adjoining.
With Parks and Gardens Nearby, Are Essentials to Proper Education.

One of the surroundings of a school should be a playground. A remark, attributed to Wellington, on the playgrounds at Eton, is often quoted by school masters: "It is there Waterloo was won." For the athletic fields, back of Eton college are large enough for the evolutions of an army. An instance of school building was recently erected in an American city to accommodate 2,800 pupils. It had a few feet of vacant land on either side. The recent English commission on its visit to the United States was impressed by the small bits of land connected with the schools.

In a just conception of the school, boys and girls must have their place, but they must not have a monopoly. Bodily development gives a natural basis for the mental and moral development of the race. That is has been to so great an extent ignored is one of the gravest defects in much of public education. Ample playgrounds are indispensable in a right system of education. The condition of country and especially city schools in this matter should command attention and special action on the part of society.

Another requisite in school surroundings is the park and garden. The public school, where possible, border on a park, one of whose adornments shall be a garden. Our branch of the race has followed the greenward around the earth and thrives in those zones where the grasses thrive. New England's trees are unsurpassed—the oak, elm, maple, pine, hickory, chestnut. Her fruit trees—the apple, cherry, pear and others—are goodly trees at all seasons, but when in bloom and fruit are among the most beautiful products of nature. Plant the arboretum nearby—it need not be large—showing native trees and others whose introduction into the town or state should be encouraged. Garden and conservatory, exhibiting plant culture to some extent, yield rich returns at small expense. Such features of education promote nature study and awaken a love of nature from daily association with her noblest forms. They add dignity and interest in the estimation of the young to agriculture and horticulture, pursuits which are fundamental in their character. Let the child learn that no man-made equals nature. No inventions are comparable to her products. As in the ancient fable Autaeus, whose mother was Earth, received strength from his mother whenever he touched the ground, so the race gets vigor as it draws near to nature and plants itself firmly on the soil. In the furtherance of these interests a solid basis is laid for a wholesome and rational state of society. In their neglect the state and nation suffer and humanity receives detriment.

It will be said by some, "All this is good, but costly and impracticable." So, indeed, it may seem at first, but a careful consideration shows that such objection is readily met. Every city resident will appreciate the fact that New England cities have in recent years given some attention to public parks, gardens and playgrounds. The public attitude in these matters is changing for the better rapidly, and in some cities remarkable results have been reached. Boston, for example, has parks, small and large, and extensive boulevards which are celebrated far and wide. But by a strange perversion they have rarely, if ever, been brought near a school of the people. Things which should not be put aside, have never been brought together. There is a park system and a school system of which the city is proud, but the relation of these two interests has been overlooked to the permanent loss of the children and youth of the city and, in consequence, to the city itself. City government and public opinion have never been brought to bear on the matter. The park man and the school man instead of going forth, hand in hand, to teach and beautify the city, have started back to back and the farther they have gone, the more they have become separated. Now they are out of one another's sight completely. What is true of Boston may be said of nearly every New England city. The idea advocated has not failed because it is costly and impracticable, but for other and obvious reasons. A change is called for in the public interest and for the welfare of the youth who are to be the future citizens of the commonwealth.—From The People.

BATTLED BALL IN BUNCHES

Boston Defeated Washington 4 to 1 Yesterday

TANNEHILL THE WINNER

He Kept the Hits Well Scattered—Both Chicago and New York Nationals Won Their Games Yesterday.

Boston, Sept. 8.—Fine bunching of hits by Boston gave them a victory over Washington, 4 to 1, yesterday afternoon. Tannehill pitched effectively for the home team and the visitors were shut out except for a home run drive by Warner in the seventh inning.

The locals scored once in the second inning on hits by Grimshaw, Morgan and Carrigan, the last named nearly knocking Cross over with his drive. The other three all came in the seventh inning. After Carrigan had singled he was forced by Tannehill. Hayden laid down a safe bunt. Godwin, who had replaced Parent early in the game, when Parent hurt his leg, popped to Stahl. Stahl singled, however, and brought Tannehill in. Then Ferris slammed a three-bagger, scoring both Hayden and Stahl.

HAD HER ASHES.

Chicago, Ill., Sept. 8.—Anthony Preezynski carried the ashes of his dead wife to the Milwaukee avenue state bank Wednesday in a vain effort to get a small deposit that had been placed in the bank in his wife's name.

The man presented to Receiver Fetzler a bank book and asked for payment of the dividend declared by the receiver.

"But that is in your wife's name," said the receiver.

"I know it," said the man. "Well, she will have to come for the money herself. Do you understand? She will have to be brought here."

"I have brought her."

"Where is she?"

"Here," said the man. He held aloft a small tin box. The receiver thought the man was crazed and started to call one of the special officers. Something in the officer's earnest demeanor, however, deterred him.

He slowly unfolded two papers. The first was a certificate of his wife's death.

The second was a certificate that the tin box contained the ashes of his wife, who had been cremated.

"The company that cremated my wife placed her ashes in this box and gave me this certificate that it contained all that was left of her body," said the man.

Ashes of the dead had not before been presented to the receiver, and he had the "umps."

"You will have to get letters of administration in your wife's estate," said the receiver. "After that, I'll go to town and talk to my lawyers," he added.

He was discovered by Mrs. Wallace Thursday, and a physician called reports that death had come about twelve hours previous. Heart failure was the cause of his sudden demise. Relatives at South Thomaston, Me., have been notified.

FORCED TO EAT.

Canadian Jail Officials Pump Food into Fanatical Russian Doukhobors.

Montreal, Que., Sept. 8.—Fourteen Russian Doukhobors incarcerated in the jail at Beauséjour, Saskatchewan, refuse to partake of food. Nourishment has to be forced through their teeth. These men are leaders of the famous band that traversed the prairie with naked feet while they wandered almost nude over the prairies.

They have revealed that if the police authorities will not allow them to turn the province into a new garden of Eden, they will starve their bodies.

It was not long ago that several Doukhobor fanatics who were imprisoned in the same jail refused to eat unless they were fed by California peaches, unwashed potatoes, and peanuts. These 14 will not even eat the rawest of vegetables or the most tempting fruit.

The authorities realized that extraordinary measures had to be adopted. A physician was summoned. Each Doukhobor was laid on his back, pinned to the floor and liquid nourishment actually pumped into him.

The Doukhobors have simply got to live, whether they like it or not.

DEAL WAS INVALID.

Whereby Toronto Traded Flynn to Boston Americans.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Sept. 8.—Some amendments to the rules governing the commission and one amendment to the interpretation of the national agreement have been announced by the national baseball commission. To retain title to contract breaking players, it will hereafter only be necessary for clubs having such title to carry the players on their reserve lists. The old method of tendering a new contract each March is declared unnecessary.

The American association is requested to abolish its non-reserve contracts, which have given the commission much trouble and are open to the suspicion in many cases of not being entered into in good faith.

The application for reinstatement of Reising, who was declared to have violated his contract with Brooklyn, was again denied, and player Flynn's purchase from Toronto by the Boston Americans was declared to be invalid, the papers not having been in proper form. Toronto's demand that Boston be compelled to complete the deal was denied.

CUBANS BLOW UP BRIDGES.

Rebels Use Dynamite and Then Repel Ironworkers.

Havana, Sept. 8.—Two bridges on the Western Railway, between Pinar del Rio and San Luis, south of that city, were blown up with dynamite yesterday morning. A force of men sent to repair the bridges, which were built of concrete and steel, was stopped by a body of rebels, numbering at least five hundred men.

The main features of the situation here yesterday are the stubbornness of the Liberal leaders and the determination of the non-partisan veterans to uphold the insurgents to accept peace terms. It is not believed, however, that anything definite will transpire until the arrival in Havana of more of the party leaders who have been summoned here from distant parts of the island.

In the meanwhile the plotting of ambitious politicians who desire to be favored by the new administration, in the event of President Palma's resignation or the Liberals winning by force of arms, continues.

CROWDING THE HEN.

Agriculture Department Hires an Expert to Make Her Lay More.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—In the midst of its activities on meat inspection, pure food, grain inspection and like large matters, the department of agriculture is finding some time to devote to the American hen. Secretary Wilson sees great possibilities in the national hen. He has set on foot some experiments to make her even more valuable than now.

Statisticians do not usually make much of the plain, everyday chicken in figuring on the wealth and resources of the nation, but last winter Secretary Wilson gave some figures that opened everyone's eyes. He showed that the farmer's hen was rapidly becoming a worthy companion to his cow, and that the annual production of eggs is now no less than twenty millions.

What the department of agriculture intends to do now is to test the food of hens and find out on what they thrive best and lay the most eggs. Poultrymen have long quarreled over whether the mash fed to hens should be moist or dry. The introduction of the hopper-feeding system has also caused doubt and uncertainty as to whether it is effective.

Robert R. Stoum, an expert, has been added to the staff of the animal husbandry to give his attention to settling these problems and others connected with the raising of poultry. He will feed fowls on different diets and watch the results. It is hoped to show that by using certain diets the egg crop can be materially increased. Consigning that there are 25,000,000,000 eggs produced in a year, if Mr. Stoum's egg and some diet that is especially suited to her, he may increase the egg crop 5 per cent. This would mean a billion more eggs in a year the country over, something the agricultural department believes is worth striving for.

NEW MARCONI DEVICE

Inventor Who Has Just Been at the Glace Bay Station Talks of Improvements Going On.

Halifax, N. S., Sept. 8.—Giuseppe Marconi and his wife, who had been spending a few days at Glace Bay station, were here yesterday on their way to New York, whence they sail for London on Tuesday next.

Mr. Marconi says that preparations are well in hand for the extension of the wireless telegraph buildings at Glace Bay. A machine shop is being fitted up, where all parts of the delicate apparatus will be manufactured. This latter involves the employment of quite a force of expert mechanics.

Marconi is now perfecting a device for the exact locating of ships. It will be tested on the Mermaid during the coming winter. He will return to Canada soon.

SHAW WARNS THE BANKS

Government Money Not For Speculation, He Says

WANTS REGULAR RATES

The Secretary Declares That Depository Banks Are Expected to Loan at Regular Rates, or Not at All.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 8.—Secretary Shaw has made public a circular letter, dated yesterday, to all national bank depositories, in which he says in effect that he expects public money in depository banks to be used in the communities where it is deposited, and not loaned through brokers and other agents in New York for speculative purposes. The letter is as follows:

"I am advised that many banks scattered throughout the country are loaning their surplus funds through brokers and others in New York on call at high rates of interest. Money loaned on call is well known universally for speculative purposes. I recognize the right of any individual to speculate in stocks or in lands, and the legal right of any bank to loan money at appropriate rates of interest at home or abroad, on ample securities, even when the loan is made in New York for speculative purposes. It is being used for speculative purposes, I am not willing, however, that government money shall be enticed away from the locality where it has been deposited for the purpose of being used in this way.

"Public deposits are made in aid of legitimate business, as distinguished from speculation, whatever the nature. Depository city banks are expected to loan at regular rates or not at all, and they must not be tempted to act as agents instead of correspondents for other depository banks in making call loans at high rates.

"If you have more money than your business can appropriately absorb, please put it in the treasury, for it can be promptly placed where it will do much good. This does not apply to banks with large reserves regularly on deposit with city correspondents."

SHAW'S LETTER CAUSES SURPRISE IN NEW YORK

Special Interest in His Ban on Lending Government Money at High Rate.

New York, Sept. 8.—Secretary Shaw's letter on the use of public money for speculative purposes created a great deal of surprise in banking circles in this city, where it was believed that a good deal of the money to be deposited by the government at interior points would be speedily diverted to this center.

Special interest was shown in the secretary's order enjoining depository banks from lending government funds at high rate. It was recognized by New York bankers that the treasury department is in a position to maintain a close watch on the operations of the depository banks in this connection because of the report made by them five times a year to the comptroller of the currency.

ASSASSIN IS FOILED.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 8.—It became known yesterday that an attempt on the life of M. Kryshanovsky, vice minister of the interior, was made a few days ago.

A revolutionist, attired as an army officer, appeared at the chancellery of the interior and asked for an audience of the vice minister, but while the revolutionist was waiting for an answer a porter noticed that his uniform was incorrect. Before the man could be arrested he became aware that he was the object of suspicion and fled.
